Triangle Of Tragedy

A FEUD BETWEEN BROTHERS who loved the same girl brought disaster to two families in the little town of Wakill, N. Y. Harry McHugh (left), postmaster of the village, attempted to kill himself today when he was trapped by police, who accuse him of murdering Marie Terwilliger (center), whose love was pledged to Jesse McHugh (right), the younger brother.

COUNTY DEPARTMENTS TO BE CENTERED AT MARTINEZ SOON

Crowded condition of the county court house at Martinez, with every department needing more space to accommodate the tremendous increase in governmental affairs of this county, authorities are looking about for additional office space to relieve the congestion, according to word from Martinez.

It is also planned by the supervisors to group at the county seat all headquarters offices of the various departments, including the coroner's office in Richmond, the horticultural and farm advisor at Concord, sealer of weights and measures at Pittsburg. Growth of population, and increase in business of the courts and all county departments has necessitated installation in all of the major elective officers' quarters of more desks, counters, filing cases and office furniture of various descriptions until rooms, which a few years ago were considered large are now woefully inadequate.

The CORE

Superior Judge Wood of Alameda county, who is opposed to capital punishment, and Superior Judge Trabucco of Mariposa county, who believes in capital punishment, have both written letters to the crime commission advocating a change in the criminal laws of the state. Both of the jurists are agreed on the needed changes and suggest, that the power to hang a man be taken away from juries and placed in the hands of the state supreme court, which will fix the penalty. They also advocate taking away certain power from prison directors, so that those convicted of murder, could not be paroled.

Yesterday was the opening of the Pacific Coast baseball league season and notwithstanding the bad weather, the baseball park was crowded, when the Oakland and Hollywood teams crossed bats. The local team lost, but that is no criterion of what their standing will be at the end of the season. Baseball is the one sport of the country that has been kept clean, and that women can attend as well as men.

The weather bureau predicts clear weather for today. Yesterday was the tail end of the winter season, and the people had a taste of about every kind of weather that could be produced. There was sunshine, rain, hail, clouds and a thunder storm. The clearing weather has just arrived in time, for the ladies will have the next four days in which to secure their Easter togs, and make the annual parade at the coming Sunday morning services.

With all the bombings, murders and slugging that are taking place in Chicago, Mayor Bill Thompson's city, it is not to be wondered at that officials of other cities are refusing to visit the city, asking of the mayor what protection he will provide them and assure their relatives they will not be returned home in a coffin. Some day the people of Chicago will wake up and root out all of the Thompson gang, and then an orderly city will follow.

The decent people of Richmond are wondering if the territory surrounding San Pablo is to be made a dumping ground of the scum of the bay section, by permitting built lights, prizefights and other activities that are generally frowned upon, to be pulled off in the area that has been erected in that section. Members of the Portuguese societies are against the operation of the arena.

FIGHT STARTS TO SAVE NECK OF HICKMAN

A final fight to save the neck of their client was launched in San Francisco yesterday in the State Supreme Court by attorneys for William Edward Hickman, now in San Quentin awaiting hanging for slaying Marion Parker, Los Angeles school girl.

It was a battle of technicalities, with the client's representatives winning the first round when attorneys Richard Cantillon and Frank Sievers were granted 30 days in which to file briefs, with oral arguments set for May 8.

The briefs will be the first attack on the constitutionality of the new California law providing for a plea of "not guilty because of insanity."

It was indicated that oral arguments will not be necessary if this point is clear in the briefs.

Sheriff Warns Against Visit By Psuedo Drys

Psuedo dry agents who have entered Contra Costa county homes on the pretense of searching for liquor, has caused Sheriff Veale to issue a warning. Admission should be denied the men unless they present a search warrant properly issued by the court. The sheriff seeks the aid of citizens in running down fake dry agents who have figured in blackmailing affairs in Crockett and urges that his office be notified immediately of any suspicions.

Bear Javelin Thrower In Trim

BERKELEY, April 3.—Emery Curtice, who was thought lost to the California track squad as the result of a torn tendon in his right arm, is once more throwing the javelin out for good distances as a result of the harness invention for him by Trainer Charley Volz.

The final snap to the spear that gets extra distance injured the muscles on Curtice's elbow, but Volz has now worked out a harness which fits on the arm and at the moment of greatest tension absorbs the strain of the last-minute effort in throwing. Curtice is now getting the javelin out around 175 feet, and will probably improve now that he is able to practice again.

O. Church, director of the county health department and under whose direction the examining of pre-school age children will be carried on.

Contra Costa county is organized for this work in one unit under the leadership of Miss Rachel K. Miller.

A definite plan of organization and procedure to bring about an hundred per cent registration and examination of pre-school children was mapped with examination to be held at twelve centers as follows: Martinez, Brentwood, Antioch, Pittsburg, Bay Point, Concord, Walnut Creek, Danville, Crockett, Selby, Rodeo and Pinole. The work in Richmond is handled by the Health Department and school authorities.

NEW PROBE TO HALT TRIAL OF EX-SECRETARY

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Yesterday's developments in the Teapot Dome scandal were as follows: L. Bruce Helms, an executive of Blair and Company, New York, testified before the Senate Public Lands Committee how he unsuccessfully attempted to get President Harding and members of his cabinet to intervene in an effort to force Albert B. Fall to give other oil companies a chance to bid on the Teapot Dome lease, which the ex-Secretary of Interior secretly granted to Harry F. Sinclair.

2. Counsel for Sinclair asked the District of Columbia Supreme Court to postpone the oil magnate's trial which is scheduled to start tomorrow. The lawyers declared they wish to examine the deposition made by Albert B. Fall. The motion will be opposed by government counsel.

3. Indications that Justice Jennings Bailey will order the new Sinclair jury locked up to prevent another mistrial fiasco which broke up the first Fall-Sinclair trial after the Washington Herald revealed that the detectives in the employ of Sinclair were shadowing the jury.

4. Former Senator Irvine Lenroot, Republican of Wisconsin, voluntarily appeared before the Senate committee to deny the Fall charges that he and Senator Smoot, Republican of Utah, urged Fall to write the famous "McLean" letter in which the ex-Secretary of the interior concealed his $100,000 loan from Edward L. Doheny.

The woman was slain by her husband and thrown into the waters below Carquinez bridge, according to a confession of her husband, Arthur, who later married an 18-year-old Oakland girl.

Antoine, with his bride of a few weeks seeking a divorce, has been formally charged with murder and will be tried in the Oakland courts. Bits of his wife's clothing found near the scene of tragedy are expected to be welded into a strong link of evidence against him.

Value Of Creative Foods Demonstrated By Savan

By MILO HASTINGS

A reader wishes to know what are the "protective foods" and if I advocate their use.

I most certainly do advocate the use of "protective foods" and have been advocating them for many years before that name was applied to them. The term "protective foods" was created by Dr. E. V. McCollum, formerly of the University of Wisconsin, and now of the Johns Hopkins. It is simply a name he has given to milk and green leafy foods because he believes them to be the most valuable foods we have for supplying the vitamins and minerals.

It was quite a clever idea to apply this term to two important foods and so emphasize their use. Dr. McCollum's idea is that if we all would use a quart of milk a day and a good bit of green leaves, we could then safely eat almost anything else. He calls for one dish of cooked green (spinach, kale and the like) every day and in addition to that green leafy salad served at two meals.

With the full quart of milk and these such servings each day of heavy foods no doubt one would be very much less likely to find his diet deficient of minerals or vitamins and hence much safer. But I would hardly go so far as to say that every other factor in diet could then be disregarded. One could still use too much fat or too much protein, or could use too much or too little total food, and some could even be constipated. However, McCollum's rule will certainly improve the majority of diets.

Dr. McCollum achieved his fame by the discovery of the fat soluble vitamin known as Vitamin A. Without this vitamin normal growth will not take place in young animals and presumably not in young children either, since man is an animal. This vitamin was found to be present in the fat of milk and also in green, leafy foods and in cod liver oil.

Six years ago I undertook an experiment to see if this vitamin would prevent rickets in chickens (a disease known to poultrymen as leg weakness since the chicks become crippled and cannot walk). Poultrymen knew that chickens were raised out of doors and had plenty of green, leafy food did not develop rickets, but they did not know whether it was the leafy food or the sun, or both, that prevented it.

I came to the conclusion that the Vitamin A in green leaves was not the preventative of rickets at least not in chickens.

By a rather strange coincidence the same reason Dr. McCollum at Johns Hopkins experimenting on rats found that rats also were not protected against rickets by Vitamin A, but that the protective factor against rickets was another substance also present in cod liver oil and which he termed Vitamin D.

That does not mean that the leafy foods are not valuable, but only goes to show that Nature's secrets may for a time elude us. Cod liver oil is very remarkable stuff, being rich in two of the important vitamins. But now we know that it isn't any exclusive property of the codfish, but that the liver of any animal has those strange nutritional potencies. We also know that this strange Vitamin D is created by the ultraviolet rays either from outdoor sunshine or from certain special electro lights. Moreover, the rays will act either upon the skin of the living animal or at least to some extent on the food he eats.

He also said that if she found that she did not like to live there they could sell the property. All of which was found later to be untrue and the farm a "myth."

Modern Homes Are Not Always New Says Phone Head

Ultra-modern homes are not always new homes. Insofar as essential conveniences are concerned, according to G. R. Calvert, manager for the telephone company in this city.

"An erstwhile 'old' home can be made as up to date as the latest type residence, through the provision of adequate telephone, gas, water and electrical facilities at time of reconstruction or renovation," Calvert states. "In this way outlets for the services are available at numerous locations, without necessity for cutting holes in walls and partitions at later dates. The advance provision of telephone conduits and accessories thus saves a considerable amount of expense and trouble for home owners."

AID OF EASTBAY PEOPLE ENLISTED IN TELEPHONE RATE WAR

SPECIAL BOARD TO PROBE CLAIM OF P. T. & T. CO.

While the telephone company is entitled to a fair return on its investment, it is the business of citizens to see that nothing more than a fair return is allowed.

Such will be the basis upon which the Telephone Users' Protective association will proceed in its program of investigation into the proposed $7,000,000 rate increase, as outlined by W. Herbert Graham of Oakland, president of the association.

Graham said the whole matter requires the closest scrutiny if the people can feel sure that all their interests are being safeguarded, and to this end the association has undertaken a program of work which is now under way.

Arrangements have been completed for a financing campaign by which the people in the whole metropolitan Oakland area will be given an opportunity to take a personal part in the battle which is to be made to protect their interests.

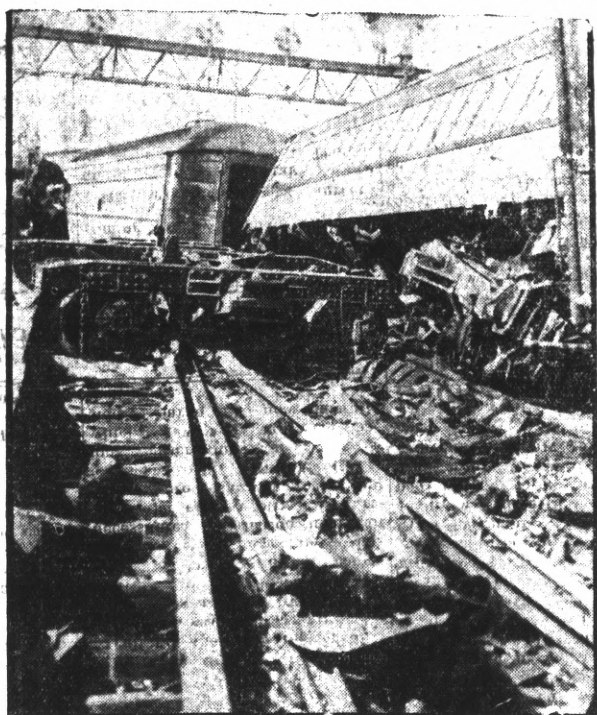

"Thus for the first time in a rate fight," said Graham, "the people can feel that they have their own personal representatives at the ring side, that these representatives have been selected by them and that the contest is being financed by them. The plan insures a continuous service performance in the rate investigation that could be adequately insured in no other manner."

Graham said that it is proposed to carry on an independent investigation, but that the association will cooperate to the fullest extent and in every possible manner with any other agencies having the same objectives. The object of the association will be the employment of expert investigators, legal and engineering, and witnesses if necessary, to insure that the people's side of the case in the East Bay shall be adequately presented before the Railroad Commission.

"Our object is investigation, not persecution of the telephone company," he said. "At the outset we recognize their right to a fair return on their investment. But we believe the valuation must be carefully analyzed by unbiased engineers. We feel that all ramifications of the case should be followed to their roots to uncover the exact relation existing between the Pacific company and the American Telephone and Telegraph company and to make sure that the latter does not charge the former unreasonable amounts for services performed or materials furnished."

"In short, we want to know all about the telephone rate situation and those who have given it the most study agree that a citizen's group, such as this association, is required to insure fair play and the most thorough probe of the facts in the rate case."

Mme. Tchaikovsky Called Fake By Red Official Who Signed Czar's Death Order

(By Universal Service)

MOSCOW, April 2.—"Madam Tchaikovsky's claim that she is a daughter of the Czar is fiction. The Russian nobility can console itself in its misery. There are 14 pretenders to the Romanoff throne, and so far as the Soviet government is concerned there might just as well be one more."

This declaration is again made by Fedor Fedorovich, who gave the order for the execution of the Czar's family and saw it carried out.

"For those interested in facts, I may say that Anastasia is not alive, that the Russian people will never tolerate a return to the monarchy. The workers and peasants of the Ural actually demanded the death of the Czar. They threatened to kick us out of the executive committee for giving the Romanoffs food and water and a 40-room villa to live in. When it looked as if counter-revolutionists were to be successful in freeing the Czar we executed him and his family."

"Nikolas was on his way to exile into our district when we received reports that a plot to free him was being organized by Prince Lovoff at Tobolsk, through which the royal train had to pass. We concentrated troops at this railroad junction and everything appeared quiet. The Czar was immediately ordered to continue the journey to Ekaterinburg."

Plan To Escape

"A few hours later we received a telegram, signed 'a friend,' stating that through the techery of a sailor named Jacovleff, the locomotive and one coach had been cut from the train and was speeding to Omsk with the royal family. The plot was then clear. If the Czar succeeded in passing Omsk, his escape from Russia via Vladivostok was certain because all of Siberia was in the hands of Czech and monarchist troops."

"Omsk was in control of the red guard. We telegraphed to the commander of the Omsk garrison ordering the railroad tracks blocked and the arrest of the Czar. Twelve hours later the royal family had been captured and shipped back under a heavy guard to Ekaterinburg."

"Counter-revolutionary armies advanced from all sides in a few months. Kazak officers revolted in Chababinsk and Orenburg to the south. A revolt was organized in Omsk. Only the country to the west was definitely in the hands of bolsheviks. The Czar knew his only hope of escape lay

PLANS FOR MAJOR WATER AQUEDUCT FOR RICHMOND AND EASTBAY ARE PREPARED

Plans looking toward the construction of a $500,000 major water aqueduct across East Berkeley aqueduct across East Berkeley to supply Richmond and other cities of Contra Costa county and Northern Alameda, were disclosed yesterday at a conference of City Manager Edy of Berkeley and Arthur Davis, general manager of the utilities district.

Application to pass through Live Oak park, Berkeley, has been made by the district, and tentative plans have been presented for consideration by the city of Berkeley.

As planned by water district engineers, the water supply line will run from the western terminus of the Claremont tunnel in Claremont Court through the eastern portion of Berkeley to Albany, where the supply line will divert to serve that city and the northern section of Contra Costa county into Richmond, as originally planned by the district engineers.

Tentative plans call for the issuance of bids on April 20 with work to start on the five-mile water line soon after that date. The following is the proposed route to be taken by the aqueduct: Starting in Claremont Court west along Webster street to Piedmont avenue; along Piedmont to Stuart to Dana street; along Dana to Alston way, thence on Oxford street to Berkeley way where the line shifts to Walnut street and along Walnut to Marin avenue and thence by way of Anadior and Colusa avenues to the Berkeley city line.

The proposed route for the supply line crosses but a small corner of the city park and the application will be presented to the City Council at today's session. Permission to carry the line along the city streets is granted the utilities district in the articles approved by the cities concerned at the time the district was established.

The plans have been turned over to the city engineer's office for investigation in an effort to avoid complications between the proposed storm sewer system and the water supply route. The engineering department suggested changes in the route in order to prevent tearing up streets which have been paved within the past few years.

As suggested by the engineering department the line would turn west on Channing way along Dana street and continue to Milvia street and along Milvia to Hopkings street and thence connect with Marin avenue and to the city line as planned originally. This route would avoid tearing up streets which have been permanently paved.

FLIER TO SPURN TRAGEDIES IN PARIS-NEW YORK FLIGHT

By JACK LIVINGSTON

Paris to Manhattan by air—a non-stop flight on the westward route which has cost so many precious lives already—that is what I hope to accomplish—that is what I shall accomplish when I hop off from French soil on May 15 or thereabouts! I am as certain that I shall do it as I am that my name is Jack Livingston.

If I had been anywhere in my proximity last December I would have been the first man to make the crossing in the plane which I have recently heard referred to as the French "mystery plane." But luck was staying the other way and I've had to struggle along since to accumulate other funds to finance my new plane and flight in May.

All Luck Only Spurs Him

But I'm rather used to this bunting by fate, and I've always bounced back stronger than ever after some of my worst rounds. And I'll come back stronger this time. It isn't money that lures me; it isn't fame; it isn't notoriety. I'm not risking my life as a forlorn lover or a seeker after romance. I have one real, earnest, sincere-hearted desire and that is to further promote the cause of aviation and of peace and amity and better understanding between all nations.

My word has always been my bond, and that word I give here, that I have no desire to commercialize my flight and it shall be a great pleasure to me and to brave Edward Chalmost, who will accompany me as pilot, to maintain the high ideals of aviation already set up by our own illustrious Lindbergh.

We shall make the flight in a monoplane equipped with either three Spani-Sulsa motors or a Wright Whirlwind motor. We have decided to carry two compasses and to limit our personnel to not more than three persons, I, e., Chalmost, myself and possibly one other aviator. We may not even take a third party but that will be determined when we take off.

Will Take Zigzag Route

I intend to take a zigzag course. It is virtually the same course that I laid out for my proposed trip last December.

My reason for originating the zigzag route is simply explained. On the westward flight the wind will be against us for the greater

Hail Boosts Local Rainfall To Normal Mark

A heavy fall of hail yesterday noon brought the season's precipitation to normal, and gave many residents of the hills east of the city their first opportunity to hrow a snow ball.

Incidentally, the mercury last night dropped down to 40 degrees above zero, the next lowest mark for the year, according to R. J. Lavery, meteorologist for the Standard Oil company. The record cold wave was recorded February 12, when the thermometer registered 39 degrees above zero.

Total rainfall for the season is now 17.86 inches, according to Lavery.

FATE OF A COP KILLER

Red Moran, murderer of Patrolman Edward Bryns, of New York, has been sentenced a second time to die.

He was given the benefit of a new trial because of an error in the charge of the judge who presided at the first trial.

This second verdict apparently settles the doom of this cop killer beyond argument.

Two juries have decided to protect the guardians of public peace with the fullest power the law allows.

When twenty-four men agree as decidedly as these have, their opinion undoubtedly represents the majority opinion of the citizens.

This in spite of the fact that the death penalty is harsh, brutal and antiquated; a relic of barbarism that should be abolished forever.

It undoubtedly would be abolished quickly if it were not for the outbreaks of such vicious foes of society as Red Moran.

Such men know no rule except the rule of force. They give no quarter to their opponents.

That is what stimulates sober, decent citizens to extend no quarter when they are captured.

It is unquestionably true that Moran's coming execution will cause other men who make a profession of law breaking to stop and think twice before they take a pot shot at a policeman.

FRUIT season used to be a reign of terror in the average household. For at the end of the day a tired, fruit-stained mother would flop down in a chair and bemoan with a sigh the fact that fruit must be canned if there was to be any in the winter. Sometimes she almost bewailed the fact that there were such fruits as peaches, pears, and apricots.

Quality Canned Fruit
Today, all this is changed. Mother has found that commercially canned fruit is even better than her own product. She finds that discrimination in buying provides quality canned fruit without sacrificing thrift. In the time saved mother is having a good time. She joins a club, she goes into social and philanthropic activities. Mother has emerged from the kitchen. With this added ease in getting

VIGOROUS HEALTH

INDIGESTION
The term indigestion is popularly applied to any symptoms which seem to indicate that the food is not "agreeing." Instead of blaming it on the food, however, most people assume that the stomach is not working as it should, and that it must be assisted with pepper or hydrochloric acid or baking soda. If it does occur to the patient that his food might have something to do with his trouble he thinks he must eat more easily digested foods and adopt a diet of toast, broth and crackers, gruels, eggs, custards, etc. If he still has indigestion he thinks the stomach needs a tonic and takes ipecac or something stronger. As a result, the first thing the patient knows he has something much worse than indigestion.

The only rational method of treating indigestion, which is merely inability of the stomach to function normally because of abuse, is to give all the digestive functions a rest by fasting. When all food is stopped, indigestion is present can be disposed of after a little rest of the alimentary tract will be ready to resume its activities in a more normal manner. It cannot stay normal, however, unless the eating habits are right. It is not only necessary to eat the right kinds of foods but to take them in the proper amounts and combinations and to avoid overeating and bolting the food without the proper mastication.

For the most part, years I have noticed that a little blood appears after evacuation. What would cause this? Do not be afraid to tell me if it is anything serious. I am a good lover, HAROLD. I cannot imagine you have bleeding hemorrhoids. It is hardly likely that anything more serious is present since the symptoms have been continuous for ten years without greatly interfering with your general efficiency. It would be well to have an examination. I suffer from a constant pounding of the heart and an unstable nervous system. Please give me some exercises to develop the heart.

Your small heart is not causing your symptoms. A so-called unstable nervous system is due to wrong habits of living which are irritating the nerves. Any exercises will develop the heart as they all require its increased action. Gradually lengthening walks would probably be best at the start, then general calisthenics. Due attention must be given to all general health building measures including the practice of relaxation. All nerve irritants as tea, coffee, spices and condiments, smoked and pickled foods, tobacco, alcohol, medicines, worry and destructive emotions must be carefully avoided.

DADDY DUSK
Twinnie had never been so popular at school in her life as she was that week when the committee was picking up the cast for the play she and Twinn had written. For every one there thought that Twinnie would have something to say about who was to play the part of Lindy, who had taken her to China on her now famous dream journey.

For a course of four years Twinnie was really the one person who knew just what a dream Lindy should look like. But Twinnie was happy just to have had her play and Twinn's accepted, and to know that she was to be herself in the dream journey.

She knew that no one else picked out for Lindy could come near to being the real thing. So she was a suit and helmet, almost any one could at least part look the part. Of course, he'd have to be able to make a speech to the Chinese people, and to smile so that the mob would have to break into cheers. That was more difficult.

Dear Patricia Lee:
I am 28 years old and have been married almost ten years. We have been very happy and have always been loved and polished out as the ideal couple by every one. Last fall I began noticing a change in my husband. He seemed indifferent and would go to the club every night before coming home and would drink and gamble. I naturally resented all this. Then the first of the year he gave up his position. At the time he told me he had resigned because he was beginning to care too much for his secretary—a married woman. Yet he said he cared just as much for me as ever. He is still out of work, and I would not mind but I have found out that he is still seeing this girl. I do not nag him, and have always joined him in golf, tennis, swimming and other sports. Miss Lee, please tell me if I am doing the right thing by just sitting still and waiting developments or will I lose out by this?

BEATRICE
Dear Beatrice—
I wonder what you would do if I told you not to sit still? Would you leave your husband? Would you have a fight with the other woman? And would anything you do help keep your husband? Of course not. You are taking the only sensible course right now—that is, if you still love him and want to keep him. Possession is nine points of the law. But I would advise you not to worry about the other woman if you can help it; not to talk to him about her. It will be hard at first but actually she will seem less real to you, if you WILL yourself not to think of her. After all, she is the one to worry. What will she get out of such a relationship except a few liches and some disagreeable scenes with her husband? You have the advantage. Keep it.

POWDER MY BACK

NOVEL BY MARLINE DEHAAS

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"POWDER MY BACK," starring Irene Rich, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
Irene Rich, famous musical comedy star playing in "Powder My Back," has numerous photographs made of titled men powdering her back. One of these pictures appears in her home town paper in Brooklyn, Iowa. Mazie, her married sister, sees it and is horribly shocked. She writes to Adele, inviting her to visit Brooklyn, suggesting that some surprising country air might do her good. Adele is amused and accepts. On the way to Brooklyn Harry Starr, recognizing Adele, introduces himself as a friend of her niece, Mildred. At the station the actress is greeted by the entire town.

Mildred and Harry were already following the entrance towards the Gordon car. Mazie, Adele and Renee piled into the rear seat, while Mildred sat up front with Mrs. Gordon who was driving. Harry lingered about the side of the car where the actress was sitting, and once more that sudden, jealous surge immersed Mildred, but she forgot it immediately, whenever she looked at her aunt. Already she had formed a tremendous liking for the most lavish style she could imagine—was even having an orchestra—the boys' school, band—and she had invited practically the entire town.

"Oh, that sounds lovely, Mazie," Adele put her hand over her sister's. "We always had such grand parties here." She recalled a visit of lantern-lung lawn and cream and strawberries and cake and giggling young girls and boys in their first long frockers. It made her seem as though in the town once more. Those were the kind of parties George Robertson—she shuddered as she thought of his name—had taken her to. And it seemed to recall a part of her life that had been practically forgotten.

"Mazie! That's your house—I recognized it," Adele clapped her hands in glee like a small child. "I knew it the moment I saw it—I didn't forget."
"Why should you, Adele?" Mazie looked slightly uncomfortable. She felt that Adele was making it seem, before the maid, that she hadn't been back to her home town for years, and it didn't sound respectable to Mazie. "You've been in it lots of times. Here, Mazie—come on get out right here," she called, as Mrs. Gordon drew up before the gate. "Well, here we are, Adele," she heaved a sigh as she tumbled out of the car and threw her gate open in welcome.

CHAPTER VIII
The Atkins house blazed with light. The doors were swung open wide. Automobiles lined up before the gate, headlights dimmed. Mazie moved about in the house, all eyes turned against the bright light. More and more people were arriving every moment, until Mazie began to feel that she was the center of the social lion of the town. Everybody who had had an invitation was coming. Perhaps, after all, Adele would be an asset. She certainly was this evening, because there was no one who had refused to come and meet the famous actress at close range.

"Many of the village people had talked the matter over among themselves, however. Women had agreed to confer upon the advisability of taking husbands but had finally decided that if they wanted to see Adele they couldn't afford to for only one reason—the family. Others expressed the idea that they were going simply out of curiosity, and that was all. But there was not one who would miss this great opportunity—except one woman who had been suddenly taken ill with a blinding headache, and the neighbors promised to stop at the festivities and tell her all about them.

Adele had dressed herself for the evening with great care, for she realized that it was for her and alone, that all this time was being made, and she would have been disappointed an audience of the group of home-town people. She had looked her up into a soft orange gown, slender, beaded and cut low in the back. And she had brushed her hair until it was smooth and gleaming. It was pushed into the waves that had it fit like a sun on about her shoulders. Her face was made her look absolutely happy and she had a look of absolute happiness. She had looked at the clock and had asked to have a glass of milk and some dry toast sent up to her room for her dinner. After all she had made preparations for that night. So that now she looked as fresh and as lovely as the youngest of the girls downstairs.

PLAN LAID FOR NINTH ANNUAL SCHOOL WEEK

SAN FRANCISCO, April 3.—In a statement issued today Mark Keppel, president of the California Teachers Association and superintendent of Los Angeles schools, urged the widest observance both by the public and the teachers of the state in the ninth annual public schools week, beginning April 23.

The California Teachers Association has a membership of 33,000 declared Roy W. Clout, state executive secretary, joining in the appeal.

President Keppel's announcement is as follows:

"Beginning April 23 occurs a distinctly California State-wide observance. Public schools week, established nine years ago, was the prototype of American Education Week, which has come to be celebrated throughout the nation.

"The specific objective of California public schools week is to inform the public in general, the taxpayers and the parents of school children in particular, of the status and progress of the public schools of California.

"The faith of the people of California in their public schools is demonstrated by the fact that California holds high rank in public education. Beginning with nursery schools and kindergartens and ascending the education ladder through primary schools, grammar schools, junior high schools, senior high schools, part-time schools, junior colleges, colleges and universities, extension training and adult education—the entire brilliant series is a source of legitimate pride.

"Among the special themes for 1928 to be considered at the meetings are: character education; school costs; the school curriculum and the requirements of modern life; what the best and most progressive schools are actually doing; the Parent Teachers Association and other societies which aid the school.

"Public school week, although fostered by the Masonic fraternity has been community-wide for many years. This year as heretofore all meetings are to be held in school auditoriums or in other public places."

Seek Black Handers Who Sent Warning Note

POLICE ARE COMBING the Italian sections of New York in search of the writers of three notes, presumably from the Black Hand, demanding money from intended victims of two of the three bombs placed in and near New York over the week-end. Photo shows ruins of palatial barber shop of John Reister, known as "John the Barber," once manager of Jack Dempsey. The apartment house of Mrs. Jenny Vavilire of Union City, N. J., was blown up when she brought a Black Hand letter to the police, and a bomb was found in front of the home of Charles Savilla, wealthy ex-cobbler of Brooklyn, who also refused to comply with demands of the Black Hand.

Clothes For Real Men Must Emphasize "It"

(By Universal Service)

NEW YORK, April 3.—Clothes may be the refuge of trivial people but they emphasize "IT," according to the latest manifesto issued by the National Association of Retail Clothiers and Finishers in convention assembled. The men now have their style shows as well as the women, although the latest trick is the joint style show featuring fashions for both sexes and thereby shattering two bank accounts with one shot.

Such an event was staged recently in Chicago, where the Universal representative, under the guidance of the apparel men learned that it takes nine tailors and approximately $4,000,000 to make a well dressed man.

Women Attracted

Women were attracted to the show in great numbers and brought the men with them, which reveals something subtle in the retail clothing mind.

Left to themselves the men might have played pinocle or listened to the radio but their wives and girl friends preferred to psychoanalyze the style situation and that let the men in for trouble. So, they led them to the edge of the precipice and pushed them off. If the joint style show persists it is expected that man will soon learn that he must not disappoint his public.

The clothiers who mobilized under heavy gun fire in Chicago told the Universal man that women were taking a great interest in styles for men and that henceforth careless husbands will be merely tolerated and not actually cherished. Such buying as the women do not actually accomplish they dictate and the fact that several thousand females paid admission to the Chicago style show is regarded as significant.

KNOWLEDGE IS HELD KEY TO LONGER LIFE

CHICAGO, April 3.—Man has acquired knowledge of degenerative diseases, but needs a special education to enable him generally to use that knowledge, is the span of life is to be extended.

"In many diseases, most of the symptoms are due to changes in the blood-composition, which affect organs remote from one which has first been injured," wrote J. B. S. Haldane and Julian Huxley in their "Animal Biology."

"For example, in heart-disease, the first symptoms is often faintness after exercise. This is because the damaged heart cannot pump blood fast enough through the lungs to absorb the oxygen needed by the body, so the brain does not get enough oxygen."

Pointing out this lack of general information, Dr. G. Henry Mundt, president of the Illinois State Medical Society, declared recently:

"We know we need eight hours sleep, reasonable diet—usually less than we now take—a certain amount of exercise, fresh air and sunshine.

"I myself don't follow these rules in spite of my greater familiarity with disease as a physician, for the same reason that other men and women of middle age don't. Healthful living hasn't been bred into our fibers.

"The present generation of middle-aged is doomed so far as following a sane regime is concerned. Our only hope lies in impressing those who will become middle-aged after us.

"So while we cut short our lives by eating too much, living too rapidly, going without proper rest—let us start educating our successors."

Athletes Swap Jobs With Actors

BERKELEY, April 3.—Athletes and actors are swapping jobs at the University of California these days.

A month ago Bobby Seller, junior tennis champion of California and fourth ranking national player tried out and won a part in the last play of the student little theatre. This week Irving "Brick" Marcus, the sorrel-topped half-back who ripped the Pennsylvania line to shreds in the Quaker-Bear football game last New Year's was judged the best of half-a-dozen competitors and Director Michel Raffetta has cast him for the part of Engstrand in Ibsen's "Ghosts" which is being produced here next month in celebration of the great Norwegian's centenary.

And today Hubert Caldwell, who has taken part in numerous campus dramatic productions, is on his way to Seattle as No. 7 quarterback in the California varsity crew which meets the Washington Huskies April 6 for the Pacific Coast intercollegiate title.

WOMEN LAUNCH DRIVE AGAINST FAST DRIVING

Reckless driving is the outstanding demon of destruction among the many factors contributing to automobile accidents on streets and highways of California. This statement was made today by Mrs. F. O. McColloch, a member of the advisory committee of the Public Safety conference of the California Development Association and also State President of the California Congress of Parents and Teachers association.

In preparation for the April street and highway safety campaign, the executive committee of the Safety conference, which has a membership of 277,000 women, has secured the latest figures from Frank Snook, chief of the State Motor Vehicle department, relative to the causes of death and injuries during February. The analysis of the February accidents in California shows 166 dead, 143 seriously injured and 1246 sustaining minor injuries. The total number of accidents reported were 1,312, brought about by seventeen causes, with reckless driving accounting for 121 of these accidents showing it to be one of the principal causes listed.

Based on this analysis the April campaign, according to Mrs. McColloch, will stress the evil of reckless driving. The police departments and all official law enforcement agencies in California, as well as Chambers of Commerce and local safety committees in all communities of the State, will lend their cooperation in stressing this phase of the automobile accident evil.

"The slow driver" states Mrs. McColloch, "can be as reckless as the fast driver. Driving on the wrong side of the street, leaping corners, cutting in, showing off, petting and improper signals are in the category of faults of both fast and slow drivers."

"Further analysis shows the deplorable fact that ignorance and lack of 'driving sense' are chief contributing factors of reckless driving. The average reckless driver does not know he is driving recklessly and this makes the problem all the more difficult and points the need of a continuous educational campaign on this feature of safety. With the assistance of the newspapers of California, we are making an appeal to all citizens in the State, not only to check their own driving with particular regard to recklessness, whether or not they be fast or slow drivers, but to watch and caution any other motorist that is disregarding, whether willfully or through ignorance, any of the safety factors in driving an automobile."

Other organizations cooperating in the April safety campaign are: the California Federation of Women's clubs, the five Regional Councils of the California Development Association, the Automobile Club of Southern California, California State Automobile Association, the Los Angeles Traffic Commission and the State Motor Vehicle Department.

Rolph's Hay Hat Blocks Traffic In New York St.

NEW YORK, April 3.—Who was it "stopped the show" on the Wall Street stock exchange today. It was Mayor Jim Rolph, Jr. of San Francisco—wearing the first straw hat seen in New York this season.

The mayor blinked as a roar of applause greeted him: "Where did you get the hat?" grinned our own mayor, Jimmy Walker as the two most popular mayors in the world shook hands. Mayor Rolph was complimented about the weather hereabouts as he loosened up a bit and boasted New York's climate in a way Californians seldom do.

Town Is Hit By New Gale

PORTLAND, April 3.—Flour gales and driving rain today continued to pile in from the storm sea off Pacific, causing much damage to towns, farm lands and highways of southwestern Oregon. "Streams of the Coast Range" were rapidly filling their banks as a downpour extending for more than two weeks continued. Floods here today were reported from Coquille and Bandon regions. The Roosevelt highway was under water and farmers were rushing stocks to places of safety as the floods continued to rise along the river which was said to be ten feet above normal level. Train service south of Coos Bay was abandoned with no immediate prospect of resuming service when high water flooded the railroads. Residents near Myrtle Point were forced to use boats to get away from their marooned homes. Loggers' shacks throughout the Coos bay section were stopped and crews withdrawn from the work to await a cessation of the terrific downpour.

State To Aid Flood Control

SACRAMENTO, April 3.—Legislation providing federal aid in fighting floods in the Sacramento-San Joaquin flood control project is expected to be before the lower house of congress for action within the next two weeks.

A telegram to this effect, predicting that the rules committee will approve a bill placing the Mississippi and Sacramento river flood control proposition on the floor for consideration was received by Congressman C. C. Young, a Sacramento man, C. E. Curry of Sacramento.

The Northern California Flood control project involves a total cost of $30,000,000 and the proposal sponsored by Congressman Curry is that the federal government shall participate in the burden on a one-third basis with the state and the land owners.

For The Easter Parade With These Dependable Values

In all our plans for Easter the underlying thought has been to present just the new things you will want for Easter Sunday and for Springtime wear; to emphasize Modes and Styles that will best harmonize with your ideas.

Quality! That Is Why We Have Waste-Baskets

The trash-bin is always larger than the strong-box. The waste-basket is usually twice the size of the letter-tray. Quality, of the lack of it, is what determines the importance of everything in life, whether it is shoes or sermons, poetry or pigs.

Some people claim that price is the most important consideration in our stores. They are wrong. No article ever crosses our counters that hasn't a backbone of Quality. Seconds, job lots, articles that won't wear well are too expensive in the long run for us to offer our customers.

Quality—always at a saving. This is more than a slogan with us. It is the foundation on which we built a successful business.
